

I am deeply troubled by the proposed change in FCC standards regarding nudity/indecency/profanity/vulgarity, etc.

The standards should, if anything, be tightened to allow less filth to be filtered into our homes. We have a huge enough issue in what our children see and do at school. To make that an even bigger problem inside our homes is nothing but irresponsible.

Please do not allow the pressures of broadcasting companies to sway in a negative direction what is deemed appropriate.

My family decided last year to cancel our cable television, as there was rarely anything appropriate or enjoyable for us to watch as a group. Out of 70+ channels, there was only a select few worth watching, Nickelodeon, Disney, Discovery. Now you want to allow more garbage on primetime because for some reason you think we don't have enough? You disgust me.
