

I am opposed to allowing any more profanity or nudity on TV at any time of the day or night. I believe current allowed levels of nudity, profanity, suggestive talk and dress (or lack) are excessive and unacceptable. The current standards are too low and should be revised and more restrictive. Wanton violence, murder, representations of irresponsible gun use should be removed unless in the context of teaching firearms safety. In my part of the US kids are allowed to watch TV any time of day or night and this junk is not needed to make a good TV show. I also request even demand that advertisements for movies or shows that air on TV should be more stringently restricted in what they show. The amount of violence sex and mayhem these ads show during "prime time" is grossly excessive and should be barred. I found it ironic recently to watch a TV show where there were lots of warnings prior to a show where a small part of a man's bare rear end was very very briefly shown in the context of a survival situation. Yet during the commercial breaks there were no warnings with frequent ads for an extremely violent movie showed huge fireball explosions, ostensibly injured or killed people flying through the air, brutal gun violence and more people dying!!! Similarly there are all sorts of warnings if legal and responsible hunting is shown but again its ok to show ads with humans getting blown to bits, buildings full of people collapsing etc. Please resolve this inconsistency. If the TV net works can't survive with responsible, civil programming let them die. Specific TV programs I find offensive in the very rare times I've dared to look are: Family Guy, 2 1/2 Men, Simpsons, Jerry Springer type shows - I haven't dared look beyond the evening news much in the last year. Thank you.
