

I'm consistently shocked by what's allowed to be broadcast on TV, especially during hours up to 11pm when most minors are tuning in. That baseline of what's considered indecent is continually raised. Children's shows are highly sexualized, the language and content inappropriate for any age group. When is this going to end?! Does anyone care anymore? Do we have to start locking down TV like we do the internet or is the FCC going to do their job and actually say 'yes, this content is inappropriate, we've been wrong for many years and are striving to re-implement a basic approval process for show content that would make adults and parents proud'.
