

It is appalling that the FCC would ever consider allowing increased nudity on television and profanities on radio and television. I had the understanding that the FCC was established to uphold the standards of our communities. While I understand that there are such communities that have a limited grasp on the English language and use these expletives on a regular basis, allowing such language to be a constant part of other communities that do not speak in expletives, is negligent and a dereliction of your duties.

I humbly appeal to your sensibilities to not allow the decency and nudity standards of American society to be replaced. How can we possibly have a high standard of ethics and morality when we continue a downward spiral of ethics and morality through our media? I believe this organization was created to protect and encourage high moral and ethical behavior. This cannot be done by increasing profanity and nudity in the media that is governed by the FCC.

Sincerely yours,

Scott Eberle
