

It would be grossly irresponsible for the FCC to allow more indecent content on television. If the FCC drops the standard, the networks will give us all the profanity and nudity they think they can get away with, and they would just keep pushing the envelope.