

As a citizen concerned over the continuing decline of moral standards in our country, I urge you to enforce the decency policy the Supreme Court has affirmed.

The FCC has the authority and the responsibility to enforce policies prohibiting indecent broadcast content during the hours when children are likely to be watching and/or listening.

Relaxing the policy would not serve the public interest. It would, however, open the floodgates for broadcasters to pour out their expletives and nudity during family time on FCC-licensed stations.
