

I strongly urge that the decency standards not only remain, but that they be much more rigorously enforced. It is my opinion that the public airwaves are far too saturated as it is with indecent exposure and foul and offensive language. Reducing the current standards would only encourage networks to insert objectionable content in every way possible. This would soon make it impossible to trust that at any time of the day or night any viewing would be free of objectionable material for my children and grandchildren as well as for me.

Please enforce existing laws and standards to the fullest extent possible.
