

I am opposed to the Federal Communications Commission relaxing indecency standards for broadcast television. These proposed changes would allow "isolated" episodes of nudity and obscene language to be included in network television programming, so long as they are not repetitive. This change would result in a major ramping up of sexually explicit and profane content in daytime television programming.