

There are only potential negative benefits in relaxing standards of nudity and profanity on TV. There are no potential positive benefits. This will not promote the general welfare, but accelerate the decline of our culture. Our people need to have decency held up as the norm, not indecency. Our children need goodness for an example, not filthiness. The effect of senseless stimulation is obvious and bad. It is unfortunate that our culture looks so much for the entertainment industry to set its standards, but it does. We should be tightening up the decency standards, not relaxing them. Thank you.
