

Nudity and profanity are a part of every person's daily life. In England, they have a watershed. This is when, after 9 pm you can air anything. If there is a show that has profanity/nudity, people who don't like it shouldn't watch it/let their kids watch it. The world has progressed in many ways, and profanity and nudity has become a part of daily life. Saying fuck or shit on television won't make the earth crumble. We've come a long way from the fifties, where you couldn't even show two people in the same bed together. Everyone everywhere knows what nudity looks like. Men know what women look like, and women know what men look like. So why is such a natural part of life so controversial? Most people use profanity in their daily conversation. And if there are people who don't like it and don't like what these shows are already saying, then it won't affect them in any way. We should stop letting people complain about how people who have shows like "Family Guy" and "Southpark" are corrupting the youth of today and start worrying about why these same people are letting their children watch it if they don't like it. So I implore you to make this change.
