

I am extremely concerned about any further expansion of nudity/near nudity on public television. Already, youth have access on the internet to pornography in ways that the former generations did not--and it is not to our good as a nation. As parents we can attempt to control what we are allowing our children to watch...however, it is tiring to see, at present, a family show occurring and then a very provocative Victoria Secret commercial....the last thing our city, state, and country needs right now is an expansion of any ruling/law that would allow the opportunity for more inappropriate pictures and programming. Sincerely, Randy Meade
