

To whom it may concern;

As our most unproductive Congress in the history of these United States settles into their five-week summer vacation, please do not allow the consumer electronics lobby to undo one of their few, well-intentioned and morally necessary works; the enactment of the CVAA (Communications and Video Accessibility Act).

Passage of the CVAA is one shining example of how Congress has actually done right by the people they are elected to represent. With the 'baby boomers' rapidly aging, the blind and visually impaired population is going to explode. The CVAA must be passed into law in order to ensure fair treatment of this ever-growing faction of society.

Please don't allow the lobbyists to take this one away.

Sincerely,
Laura T. McGannon/Teacher Consultant for the Visually Impaired
