

Verizon Wireless and the NFL Mobile App are blocking access to rooted smartphones. I am willing to pay for the content they provide but they will not allow me to and are treating me as a thief. The reason my phone is rooted is so that I can install the latest operating systems shortly after they are made available. Verizon provides these updates months after they are released. That's fine. They choose to move slowly while I choose to root my device and update it myself. I paid for it after all. However, because of their policy, they are now limiting my device on the presumption that I may do something nefarious. This is simply un-American.

Thank You.
