

I cannot understand why the FCC lets these people put up strobe lights that do not go red. They might as well come slap the FCC in the face because lots of them are running full blast ALL NIGHT. Greenville, Ms looks like a Christmas tree 365 days of the year. If you let someone put up a tower you should at least make the thing go red at night. Maybe the FCC is scared to tell these people that they do not own the night sky.