

I know that this may be a little late, but doesn't Miley Cyrus' performance on the VMA violate a law? I think that what she and Robin Thicke did was a simulated sex act, which qualifies as porn. On public tv. On a show that families watch. I think that it is time that you guys need to step in and crack down on the stuff that they call entertainment that basically is pornography. I'm not a prude, but that crossed the line.
