

Hello,

I am very happy that the CBS program NCIS has description. Although I am legally blind and can see TV, I miss the small details of fast action and totally enjoy the helpful descriptions that make the program easier to follow and understand. I wish more movies had description and they were readily available where retail DVDs are sold. Can't all movies contain an optional description track? It is regrettable that the iTunes store does not also offer its TV and movie downloads with DVS. I'd also like to be able to easily request DVS be added to a particular movie or program, but I don't know if this is practical. I love description in movies and TV and want to see this feature made more widely available as closed captioning is.
