

I am a Dish network customer and I feel that someone needs to think about the consumer that is getting the short end of the stick between Dish and Media General. I feel we are paying for a service and losing programming because two companies can not agree what to charge for a signal that carries through the air for free. We pay for a service to have the channels we want without having to switch from antenna to dish to cable because it is convenient. I feel these companies are charging too much for the bad services they provide
