

My first thought on this is I love it! However, I do wish I had known about the programs described and how to find them. I discovered the description on the USA channel quite by accident. I accidentally hit the language button on my remote and suddenly there was this strange voice. It took me a minute to realize what it was and pay attention. I thought at first it was a sporadic cell phone caller bleeding into my programming.

Now, as for the description it is nice to be able to follow the action when many times the action is silently performed and has no dialogue to give one an indication of what's happening. NCIS is famous for this sort of silent ending and now I know what happens without having to call my friends to ask them. But again, to my knowledge this is only being done on the reruns I have found on the USA network. CBS, NBC, and ABC don't seem, yet, to have the shows described. there may be bugs- but all in all , for me, it's great!
Thanks!
