

I would like to know why telecommunication companies are allowed to charge early termination fees and lock customers into a one to two year contract. What recourse do customers have if we don't like the service being provided? Based upon the companies rules, we will be charged from $100.00 to $250.00 dollars for canceling the service. This is ridiculous. The FCC should be ashamed for allowing companies to do this to customers.