Please do not allow the use of cell phones on flights. Cell phones are wonderful and for the most part have changed our lives for the better. There are, however, too many individuals who take and make calls, talking loudly and at length no matter where they might be, i.e. library, grocery store, restaurant, light rail, etc. In those circumstances it is generally easy to leave the area sooner than later; this is not the case on a plane flight. The use of phones would result in a flaring of tempers, arguments regarding the continued use of the cell phone, and probable fisticuffs. Flying is stressful enough already without this added stressor.
