

7521065865.txt

There should be no laws against phone calls on flights. There are many things people find uncomfortable about flying, crying babies, coughing, sneezing, loud non-phone conversations, excessive laughing, and so on. However, these things are matters for airlines to set policies not the FCC. If phone calls becomes a problem after legalization, individual airlines can offer no-talking seating sections or have no mobile phone flights.