

Dear FCC:

One size does not fit all. I mean, like, a huge tower in the National Parks may be the right thing. Some look great. Like a tower disguised as huge evergreen a top the Grand Tetons may look great but it may not look so good in the Adirondack Park.

NYS has good and working regulations. No complaints. Scenery pretty much preserved. Perhaps the FCC should take a look at some successful regulations here in NYS to implement nationwide instead of reinventing the wheel that may turn out to be a flat tire.

NYS has preserved this gift from the past very well. Why take steps to destroy an irreplaceable treasure.
