RE 13-301, Expanding Access to Mobile Services Onboard.

Proposal is a logical but definitively horrible idea. Until cell phone manufacturers amplify microphone input back to the phone speaker (as land line phones have done for decades), 99% of phone users will continue to bark loudly. It is distracting and massively grating to be within 25 feet of one of these guys in the gate area. On a noisy plane, it will be worse, and of course nearer. It will take a generation to unlearn this behavior; the airlines won't be able to police it. There will be minor violence, some of it justified.
