

7521075534.txt

Like most, I think voice calls is a DREADFUL notion and there's no consumer-oriented reason to allow the airlines that option; the flight attendants understandably hate the idea anyhow. I don't understand why the discussion isn't about making TEXTING possible; if anything, that would make planes quieter and accomplish the end of allowing passengers to communicate and allow cell companies and airlines to profit.