I have a 100/20 megabit Comcast line, which is generally speaking extremely fast and reliable. I have also been using Aereo to stream live TV, as the HDTV antennae reception in my building is not always reliable.

Around the time of the Super Bowl, I noticed an extreme downgrade in the quality of the video stream from Aereo. While it was previously able to maintain the highest available setting, it now struggled to properly playback the lowest. I suspected this issue was specific to Comcast because the stream continued to be of the highest quality when viewed from my office connection and from my ATT LTE cell phone.

I have not been able to maintain a high quality stream from Aereo since the end of January. No other sites appear to be affected.
