I ask that our FCC reinstate Net Neutrality rules by classifying internet service providers as Common Carriers.

I feel the current proposals by President Obama and the FCC commission to deal with a the recent court decision (Verizon v. FCC) are inadequate to address such an important issue.

Personally I would like to see major parts of our internet removed from private control and brought under public control so ensure a fair and open internet for all citizens. I realize this move would have to overcome resistance from many, so as a minimum, for now, I encourage my FCC to pursue the Common Carriers option.
