

7521101082.txt

Re-classify broadband providers as telecoms. The current proposal is not a protection of open internet at all, it is a sham that will force citizens and content providers to throw more money at a few huge companies that already receive bloated profits by providing less and charging more.

The politicians of our country love to say it is the best in the world. No, it's not, and our backwards-sliding movement by the rich elite to stifle the voice of the people and rape our already-suffering bank accounts is proof that we are falling far behind the rest of the world.

Make the broadband companies compete for our business. Allowing them to extort money from honest internet start-ups and popular content providers is UNACCEPTABLE. It is not an example of capitalism, it is an example of the rich taking advantage of the poor. It is a vehicle which can, and inevitably will, be used to limit free speech, and I WILL NOT LIVE IN A COUNTRY WHOSE POLITICIANS' IDEA OF CIVIL FREEDOM COINCIDES WITH THAT OF IRAN AND NORTH KOREA! Re-classify them as common carriers and give us back a fair internet.