I want all ISPs to be classified and regulated as utilities. The only acceptable solution is the reclassification of ISPs as common carriers under Title II of the Telecommunications Act.

Without this the internet (At least in the USA) will cease to be an engine for relentless innovation and will instead become an entrenched network of established players squeezing users for more and crushing upstart competition. This is honestly a very straight forward issue. The EU and Brazil have already taken steps to protect net neutrality. If you can't do this job properly it is only proof of what we already know. Corruption rules the day in Washington, DC.
