

7521103382.txt

Broadband internet should be classified as a telecommunications service. I use the internet more for communication than I do my telephone. The internet is pretty much entirely communication, whether it be in pictures, blog posts, emails, Skype, tweets, or Facebook -- it's all communication. What I am doing right now, filing this comment, is communication via the internet. Please classify the internet as a telecommunications service.