

7521104017.txt

I strongly believe that the FCC should reclassify broadband internet as a common carrier telecommunication service. Regulating the internet the way that radio and television is doesn't make sense. ISPs shouldn't be able to determine arbitrarily the data rates/quality for content from providers to consumers, or create a tier system for content providers.