

7521104165.txt

I would just like to say I feel this proposal is woefully inadequate. As an interested user of the internet and an interested follower of this story, I have yet to find a single statement in support of these rules not issued by a major telecom, wait excuse me, internet service provider. If there isn't even a debate about it, no pros but only cons, shouldn't that be enough proof that this needs rethought?