

7521104174.txt

The internet is a place where anyone can create content to share and anyone can access that content and build on it. I really believe that it is currently a force for good, and to keep it that way broadband internet should be reclassified as a common carrier service.