Please acknowledge and take action against companies like Comcast and other internet service providers (ISPs) trying to uproot the ideals of net neutrality through government lobbying.

Comcast is quickly becoming a monopoly: Comcast's recent merger with Time-Warner Cable (TWC) has allowed the company to claim exclusivity of most of the United States as the single provider, or the only option, for internet service. In doing so, American consumers are forced to either pay the rapidly increasing prices which Comcast charges for their service, or not have internet at all.

Most major ISPs are severely throttling sites, to the point that they are unusable: Popular websites such as Netflix, Hulu (and Hulu Plus), YouTube, and more are being throttled by ISPs to the point that you cannot hardly access the main page, not to mention actually trying to view a video. The ISPs offer an out, by charging either the website host a massive, recurring fee to utilize the same bandwidth that other website hosts get for free, or charging the consumer for "deluxe" packages (which most are prohibitively expensive). Essentially, they are attempting to copy the already outrageous television marketing scam-I mean scheme.

To reiterate, please stop these monopolistic companies and their 'steal-the-market' strategies from being considered 'okay' or 'fair business practices'. Do not allow these companies to gain any more ground against us Americans, the masses, the consumers. Please help us to maintain net neutrality.
