

7521104365.txt

As an American I feel the Internet is one of the last places that free speech and the free flow of ideas is truly possible. If net neutrality is taken away in order for these companies to make even more profit, then how can we be sure a website won't be throttled when it speaks out against this this same company. In an age where we are limited on providers for high speed Internet, that is too much power given to corruptible, money-hungry gate keepers.