

7521104634.txt

The internet has thrived on being free and open. To change this would stifle innovation to a point where we could no longer call this the information age. Broadband internet should be reclassified as a telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service. Comcast and other ISPs will create a two-tiered internet. Don't give in to corporate greed.