

7521104697.txt

Net neutrality isn't a nicety. It's essential to U.S. competitiveness. We have to be proactive in assuring that every company, whether it has 2 employees or 200,000, has the same access to customers. No "fast lane," no tiering, no throttling. If we don't ensure it, other countries' markets will--and they'll become the next tech hubs, leaving America in the dust.