This isn't capitalism, this is corruption. Capitalism shouldn't promote bribery and control of those who represent the people and make choices in favor of the people. In this case, the choices are being both called by and made for companies like Comcast. This needs to end. Recently a list was released revealing which congressmen and representatives had stock in Comcast, and how much money they had "invested" in it. Come election day, I am going to do my part as a citizen to select those better at working for the people than accepting money to exploit them. If we want this country to remain the gem of the Western World, we better work for it.
