I get charged 80 dollars a month to pay for Comcast's excuse for a service. We have one of the fastest internet plans and the connection is still unstable. I also have a Netflix account. In recent news, Comcast decided that the pile of billions and billions of dollars that they have had to be a bit bigger because they weren't sleeping well enough and throttled Netflix simply for being a better service than they provide.

If the internet's equality is lost than only the very powerful and rich will survive... Again. Please reconsider the recent Net Neutrality proposition. Internet freedom should be a right to everyone, not just those who only take for themselves.
