

7521105170.txt

Broadband and high speed internet access should be classified as a Common Carrier Service. The Internet is a tool, used all over the world for communication. By allowing Internet Service Providers to accept compensation from content providers (Netflix, Hulu, etc.) for preferred speeds, without installing new bandwidth, it creates an environment not conducive to Free Market Competition. Bigger companies get a fast lane, smaller companies do not.

This undermines the Free Market. This is not acceptable.