

7521105203.txt

The internet is an incredible access point for people around the globe to connect, learn, share and educate. Allowing corporations to decide who has access to what and at what price mutates a valuable resource for all into a capitalist gain for a few.

Broadband internet should absolutely be reclassified as a telecommunications service.