Dear FCC,

I ask that you do not cower away from Net Neutrality and I will be very disappointed if you cower in the face of major corporations that could leverage their power against the common people. As an appendage of the people, you have a responsibility to make sure that people don't get crammed into the "slow lane" and that you regulate certain aspects of the web; else the Internet will essentially go to the highest bidder. Thank you for taking the time to read this comment.
