

7521107119.txt

The internet is one of the crowning achievements of mankind. Never before has so much knowledge been available to so many, and so easily. It's a cultural force, a medium that's driven untold amounts of innovation, and something that's become essential in business and everyday life to billions of people.

The reason it is all of these things is that it is a telecommunications medium, open and equal, democratic and free. Please don't allow that to change so that telecoms can make a quick buck.