

7521108326.txt

With an increasing demand on internet for entertainment, communication, and work, it should be treated as an essential telecommunications service. Many offices and home offices use VOIP communications, online meetings, and more that require a sufficient internet connection. Please strongly consider broadband internet as a telecommunications service and not an entertainment service.