I recently obtained Google Fiber one of the fastest internet service providers the United States of America has to offer at a rate that is comparable to that of other internet service providers. I do not want to see an increase of service costs or a decrease of service performance because of outdated and convoluted business models that do not want to change or business models that change to stifle innovation and competition in their respective fields.

The FCC is here to protect the general public, not to empower already overpowered corporations. These corporations will "bully" the competition and the FCC will help create monopolies. Allowed competition so a company will not be labeled as a monopoly will happen as long as the competing company and the consumers of that company pay the monopoly/parent company in the field of service for the right to be a competitor.

Please do the correct thing and use "common sense" here and keep the internet's free flow of data protected and not sell it off to the highest bidder.
