

7521109512.txt

Several companies have grown and become successful because of a neutral internet. Without a neutral internet, these same companies would not be able to exist, and small businesses would have a harder time becoming successful. In order for a capitalist economy to work, there must be competition. If the internet is no longer neutral, then our economy will begin to run the risk of stagnating.