

7521109788.txt

I am strongly in favor of "Net Neutrality", and strongly oppose telecom carriers being given legal license to extort more money from both consumers and companies by selectively throttling bandwidth or selectively providing better service. Such action would be detrimental to the economy and society; further bloating already monopolistic companies at the expense of small content providers.