

7521110186.txt

The internet is an essential tool in education, commerce, and leisure in the United States. An unrestricted and open internet allows Americans to connect with individuals and resources that they could not otherwise. Allowing a few corporations to dictate which businesses or individuals can access this incredible tool could stifle innovations and decrease consumer choice by limiting access to certain services.

Internet Service Providers should be classified as Title II Common Carriers to preserve fairness and a thriving, open internet.