Dear Sir / Ma'am,

I am writing in support of classifying internet service providers as common carriers in order to make sure that the integrity of the Internet and World Wide Web are maintained.

It is essential to the freedom of speech that internet service providers treat all data equally, regardless of its origin. Without this, innovation will be stifled, free communication between people will be infringed, and behemoth corporations will continue to get larger at the expense of our entire country's well-being.

I entreat you to consider the ramifications of allowing Net Neutrality to be discarded. It would be disastrous. Please do not allow this to happen - classify all ISPs as common carriers, and let freedom ring.

Sincerely,
Sean Payne
