

7521110397.txt

Right now, the internet is the epitome of democracy: We (We meaning people that have access to a computer or phone or library) can finally share ideas with people around the world in a manner of seconds. Billions of people log on around the world to share, create, think, write, read with each other every day. Millions make their living through the internet. Please. I beg of you. Do not equate money to speech. Our voices are speech. Please.