I'm writing to ask that the FCC establishes broadband Internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. We cannot have the flow of data be controlled by the oligopolistic entities that the ISPs of today have established themselves to be. In order to have true competition, they need to be downsized and less dominant over regional domains, and the fact that they are not is proof enough that they are not ready to govern which data we get to see and what we don't.
